

895

1912 Dates J-BK

CAPE MISENO

A promontory projecting into the Bay of Naples in the northwest and connected with the mainland by a narrow strip of coast, 9 mi southwest of the city of Naples. On it are the ruins of the ancient city and naval station of Misenum made by Augustus for a division of the Roman fleet. He also constructed a large harbor for the purpose.

the Saracens destroyed the town in 890

Southern Italy is subject to the Greek empire. The rest of the power is at Bari.

C 890

the men in Spain promote Architects and adorn their cities with rich buildings